

NEED YOKE FOR THIS PRISONER.

JOSEPH BASSI SO SMALL HE CREEPS OUT VENTILATOR.

Had, Arrested for Stealing a Watch, Escapes Twice from Jersey City Prison.

Unless the air-holes in the cells in the Police Headquarters, in Jersey City, are made smaller, a yoke will have to be put on Joseph Bassi in order to compel him to remain as a guest of the municipality.

Joseph is thirteen years old, but is small for his age. He is also bad. His defiance of law has caused his arrest repeatedly. This morning he was arrested because he picked up a watch dropped by a young woman at the corner of Washington and York streets and ran away with the timekeeper instead of returning it to the owner.

He was found in a coal chute under the sidewalk at No. 53 Montgomery street and was locked in a cell at Police Headquarters.

Two hours later he was seen making for the street by the front door at Police Headquarters by Capt. Cody, who stopped him.

"How did you get out of the cell?" asked the Captain.

The boy went to the cell and pointed to the ventilator hole, an opening that measures 7.4 by 11 inches.

"Through that," he said. Capt. Cody was sceptical, so he placed the boy again in the cell and locked the door carefully. Fifteen minutes later the grinning boy again appeared before the Captain.

He was held for further examination by Acting Magistrate McCormick and was placed in a cell that had no air hole.

IN MALE ATTIRE; FINED HER $10.

PRETTY WOMAN SUCCEEDED IN CONCEALING IDENTITY.

Wore a Diamond Engagement Ring and Young Man Paid Her Fine.

The young woman who was found last night at the Twenty-third street pier dressed in men's clothes was arraigned in the Yorkville Court this forenoon before Magistrate Mott.

She had given the name of Anna Christensen to the Sergeant at the East Thirty-fifth street station last night, and to-day admitted it was fictitious.

She confessed to the matron her real name and address, and the matron had sent for her clothes. She had changed her dress in the station-house.

Magistrate Mott asked her why she had donned male apparel and she replied she had no reason to give. She was fined $10. A young man passed her the money, which she paid to the clerk. The two left the court-room together. She wore a large diamond engagement ring.

Policeman Fairley found the young woman on the pier at about 8 o'clock. She was harassing a crowd of loafers on the rights of man and had a champagne bottle under her arm.

SAILOR USED A KNIFE.

Rushed Into a Water Street Saloon and Stabbed the Proprietor.

James Dee, a saloon-keeper at Water and Oliver streets, was stabbed to-day by William Doyle, a sailor, of No. 379 Water street.

Dee was in a saloon at No. 2 James slip when Doyle rushed in and, without a word, slashed him across the face, inflicting a serious cut. The men, it is said, quarrelled last night in the Water street saloon.

Dee was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital and Doyle held for examination.

To-Morrow Is the Final Day of the Big Store's Fifth Anniversary Sale.

A week of tremendous selling is drawing to a close. A week of remarkable achievement in retailing is waning. A week of brilliant successes is terminating. With the clang of the store gong at 6 o'clock to-morrow evening the Big Store's Fifth Anniversary Sales will be ended.

And what a week of surging, incessant activity it has been! What is the lesson to be deduced from these series of trade triumphs? What has this Anniversary Sale meant to you? What has it meant to us? What will it mean to you in the future?

The Sale has brought you into vivid touch with the world's best merchandise. It has permitted you countless opportunities to buy at much below the usual prices charged for such qualities. It has introduced you to the freshest fashions of the period. It has demonstrated as no other sale possibly could the superior advantages which result from shopping at The Big Store.

For us the Anniversary has won thousands of new friends. It has strengthened old ties; it has welded new ones.

And with the dawning of the new week come fresh excursions into other fertile fields. There is never any abatement of interest here, but always something new. The power of price and the power of merchandise are perpetually illustrated in a manner that leaves no doubt in the reader's mind.

No public utterance in recent years has made such a deep impression on the American people as the

Last Speech of William McKinley,

Late President of the United States, given at Buffalo

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1901,

and believing that every true American will want a copy of it to preserve as a memento of one of the noblest Americans who ever lived we printed 25,000 copies of the speech and will distribute them FREE to-morrow. Ask any clerk in the store for a copy.

Men's and Young Men's Fall Clothing—Astonishing Values.

The Men's and Young Men's Clothing Sections should be crowded every hour of Saturday. Such values as we enumerate for to-morrow will arouse much enthusiasm.

Do you need a Suit or an Overcoat? Or both?

This is a splendid opportunity. Every fleeting minute hurries us nearer to real cold weather. The knell of summer has been sounded. Prudence says buy seasonable clothing without delay.

What man doesn't want to be well dressed when a few dollars will work so magically? Old clothing lacks freshness and fashion, no matter how carefully cleansed and pressed. New, stylish clothes beget confidence, give a man prestige and promote his welfare, for much of one's success depends upon personal appearance.

We've been tremendously busy all week selling clothing to men who wanted style, merit and good fit at minimum prices. Extravagance of price is unknown here. We can sell you a suit or an overcoat as good as any merchant tailor can make for you, but we don't charge his prices. It isn't necessary.

Get your suit made to order and you've got to wait two or three weeks. Come here and we'll fit you in a jiffy. No delays; no bothersome remaking; no final misfits.

This news for Saturday will interest you immensely:
